✓ "INDUSTRIAL CHINA SEEN BY DOCTOR DORSEY"
Powers Educational Split Reel—Released May 8.

Hankow has its "poverty row" like other industrial towns. The use of coal has been known since earliest times. Cattle are raised in the interior and hides are an important export. Millions of pig's bristles are exported. The Chinese are very fond of pork, and are experts in curing hams. In the river there is seen a forest of masts. Many of the boats are propelled by hand. For thousands of years the Chinese have been clever ship-builders, and there are no better sailors on earth.
